Experience the Eiteljorg Museum for free!

The Kendallville Public Library has purchased two passes to this Indianapolis destination. Each is good for admission of up to four adults (at least two must have the same address) and all children age 17 and under. One pass will be available at the Kendallville Public Library, while the second pass will be kept at the Limberlost Branch in Rome City.

The Eiteljorg Museum of American Indians and Western Art is filled with one-of-a-kind experiences. It includes stunning galleries, a state-of-the-art education center, nearly three acres of gardens, Southwestern cuisine at the café and a wonderful collection of western and native jewelry and gifts at the Frank and Katrina Basile Museum Store.

Through August 6, the museum is hosting a special exhibit, Dogs: Faithful and True. It's a heartwarming look at the bond between humans and our canine friends and includes art, photographs, objects, interactive experiences and family programming. Numerous other special exhibits and activities are planned throughout the year.

These passes will be available for checkout through June 30, 2018. Those planning a trip to Indianapolis and wanting to visit the Eiteljorg Museum may reserve a pass for specific dates. To make a reservation, contact the Kendallville Public Library at 343-2010 or its Limberlost Branch at 854-2775. Passes can be reserved for up to 10 days.

Businesses interested in participating in Showcase Kendallville are encouraged to contact the Kendallville Chamber of Commerce at 260-347-1554. Both events are free for the public to attend.

Featured artists in the Fair include Jill Bontrager, Joan Bovee, David Button, Jerry Easterday, Sandy Flack and Donald Weikle, Jr. Authors include Dawn Crandall, Leland P. Gavson, Betty Hartman, Nick Hayden, Steven J. Herendrask, Mark R. and Emily Hunter, Nathan Marchand and Belinda Wilson. More information about these featured artists and authors, and details on the event itself, can be found online at www.kendallvillelibrary.org. The library has also created a Facebook event, so feel free to interact and share there!

Upcoming Make & Take Challenge:

All through August, "What will you make with...?" We’ll provide you with a wide variety of items, and you can design or create anything you’d like. We’d love it if you would take a photo of your project, and share it with us on social media! The Cortex is Free:

A reminder that The Cortex is free to use. All of the supplies we provide are available to you free of charge, including 3D Printer filament. We do suggest that you bring paper for the Cricut, and thread and fabric for the sewing/embroidery machines as we do not usually keep that on hand.

Grumpy Pants
By Claire Messer

Grumpy Pants is about a penguin who has had a very bad day. With a ferocious scowl on his face, he takes off his grumpy coat and his grumpy boots, but it doesn’t help. He is still grumpy. Nothing seems to improve his mood. Can anything cheer him up?

I’ve read Grumpy Pants at our M.A.P.S. Workshop and at several outreach programs, and it is always a huge hit. The kids laugh out loud when the penguin takes off his grumpy underpants (which are red with hearts on them). The illustrations are done in bold shades of yellow and blue that immediately draw the reader's attention. The length is just right for a preschool audience, and the repetition in the text will appeal to younger readers. This is also a great choice for kids who have difficulty controlling their temper.

Old MacDonald Had a Truck
By Steve Goetz & Eda Kaban

A new twist on an old classic, Old MacDonald Had a Truck takes the familiar tune and replaces the farmer’s animals with big machines. A goat and a fox drive a giant excavator, as pigs in bright orange vests and safety helmets help dig a hole. A sheep standing on a pair of chickens directs the workers. And the farmer and his wife supervise as their crew of barnyard animals build something very, very big. What could it be?

Old MacDonald Had a Truck is a lot of fun to read or sing aloud. Kids will be able to sing along with the chorus, and you can make a game out of guessing which big machine will be named next. This is a great read for any kid who likes trucks or construction.

Library Pours Hearts and Funds into Events

The Kendallville Public Library and its Limberlost Branch are places to not just check out books, but to gain experiences. Numerous events each month are planned for children, teens and adults that are more than just reading a quick story or making a simple project.

Each year, the department managers earmark a significant amount of their budgets for programming. Programming expenses include purchasing supplies, hiring speakers and performers, picking up snacks and more. The library is funded through tax dollars – your property taxes, primarily, and we work hard to be good stewards of those funds.

When we plan an event, we’re planning it for you. We’re connected to our community and we listen, so we have a good idea of what our community wants and needs, and we do our best to provide it. Some events don’t require registration, because we won’t need to purchase a certain amount of supplies in advance, but some do require registration.

When you register for an event, that tells us that you are going to be there. We hope you’re looking forward to the experience and are excited by what you’ll learn or accomplish. Most events that require registration are limited to a certain number of participants, so that we can purchase just the right amount of supplies. When you register, we’re purchasing supplies just for you and the others who have signed up to attend. Sometimes, these events fill fast, and we have a waiting list of others who are just as excited to attend, but got signed up just a little too late.

We understand that life happens, and sometimes when you register for an event you get sick, or something comes up and you can’t make it. We get that. In that case, we hope you’ll give us a call or send us an email so that we can let someone on the waiting list know that a spot has opened up. If we don’t know that you’re not coming and can’t contact someone to fill your spot, then we’ve spent money on supplies – perhaps it’s your tax money, or money that has been gifted to the library by a private source - that aren’t going to get used at that event.

Archivist Wasp
By Nicole Kornher-Stace

In this post-apocalyptic novel, the main character is Wasp, an Archivist. In this world, an Archivist is marked from birth to do the work of the Goddess Catchkeep. Simply put, their job is to hunt ghosts and send them to their resting places. Not so simply, is the fact that each year the reigning Archivist must fight Upstarts, those who have also been marked as possible Archivists, to remain Archivist.

In this kill or be killed world, Wasp meets a powerful ghost on one of her ghost hunting quests with whom she strikes a deal. Wasp has never met a ghost who is cognizant of his surroundings. To Wasp’s surprise, not only is the ghost aware, but he makes a request for her to go with him to the underworld to find his lost partner.

Will Wasp find the super-soldier ghost’s long lost partner? Is this world Wasp lives and works in really what she believes it to be? This novel is a must read for dystopic sci-fi fans.

Yvain: The Knight of the Lion
Written by M.T. Anderson and Illustrated by Andrea Offerman

In M.T. Anderson’s first graphic novel, he turns to the Arthurian Legend of Yvain the Knight. This graphic tale is based on Chrétien de Troyes’ epic of the same name. The whole story begins when Yvain’s cousin is embarrassed in battle by a neighboring lord. Yvain is eager for glory and leaves on a journey to avenge his cousin before the rest of King Arthur’s Knights can join him the next morning.

Sir Yvain defeats the local lord and unwittingly intertwines the rest of his life with two strong willed women. One is Lady Laudine, the widow of the lord Yvain slayed. The other is Lady Laudine’s maid, Lunette, master of words and trickery. This graphic adaptation of a 12th Century epic is everything an Arthurian lore fan could want.
