Board Report
March 2017

Kleiman: Entries for the Kleiman Creative Writing contest are due Friday, March 17. Soon it will be time to start reading and selecting our top picks for the contest. I'm finalizing judges for a weekend in April to evaluate the top selections for each grade and category.

Webinar for the State Library: Leah, Beth, and I presented a webinar called Check Out STEAM for the state library at the end of February. The presentation went well. 59 people were registered for the webinar and around 30 actually attended the live session. Playback is available for those that were unable to attend the live event. We received many questions during the session and emails afterward.

Summer Reading: The teen department planning of summer reading is underway. This year's theme is Build a Better World. This year we are planning some more in-depth programs that require participants to return and build upon what was created or learned during a previous program.
